Editorial Note

SAMSAPTAK has been published regularly in print since 2015. Over the years, the journal has gained the trust and appreciation of both readers and contributors by maintaining academic integrity and consistency. In response to the growing demand from scholars and readers, and with the changing landscape of academic publishing, the first e-version of SAMSAPTAK is being launched.

The e-version debuts as an International Multidisciplinary Journal and follows a Double-Blind Peer-Reviewed process. It focuses on Arts, Social Sciences, and Humanities. Volume 1, Issue 1 (January 2026) includes research articles from diverse fields such as Bengali, English, Philosophy, History, and Geography. This reflects the journal's goal of being interdisciplinary and inclusive.

SAMSAPTAK is an Open Access educational journal, published under the Creative Commons CC BY-NC 4.0 License. This ensures free and wide distribution of scholarly knowledge. One of our main objectives is to encourage digital academic engagement among the youth and motivate young researchers to get involved in research activities. Through this platform, we hope to help emerging scholars gain academic visibility at both national and international levels.

The editorial board is dedicated to maintaining high academic standards, ethical publishing practices, and intellectual openness. We sincerely thank all authors, reviewers, readers, and supporters for their continued encouragement.
